Net Investable Assets

Net investable assets is defined as all investable assets minus the liabilities on those assets. This may include:

- Securities
- Futures contracts or options held for investment purposes
- Physical commodities held for investment

- purposes
- Swaps and other similar financial contracts entered into for investment purposes
- Real estate held for investment purposes
- Cash and cash equivalents held for investment purposes

Net investable assets should = a client's Cambridge holdings (Wove balance) + their holdings held outside of Cambridge (CLIC Outside Current Holdings). Outside holdings include any investable assets for which Cambridge is not the broker-dealer (or any assets that do not feed into Wove).

Note, an asset may be included in net investable assets even if it is not readily available, as long as it is held for investment purposes. This would include assets such as rental properties, retirement accounts, a 529 plan owned by the client, or a second home or vacation home.

Net investable assets may not include the value of a client's business, assets owned as part of a client's business, or real estate owned as part of the business; however, these assets may be included in the client's net worth. Other assets which should not be included in net investable assets are antiques, collectibles, automobiles, and primary residence.

Sensitive vs Secure/Encrypt

We reviewed the email encryption policy and focused on the safest way to protect client information when requesting documents back from them.

- E-mails with Encrypt or Secure in the subject line only protect your E-mail when you send it out. If the client replies and changes the subject line (for example, "Here you go!"), the encryption is removed and their reply may create an E-mail violation.
- E-mails with Sensitive in the subject line are encrypted both ways — when you send and when the client replies. The client is directed to a secure portal, which guarantees the reply stays encrypted.
- Because of this, Sensitive should always be used when requesting documents or personal information from a client.
- With cyber breaches on the rise, avoiding this small inconvenience (logging into a portal) is not worth the potential risk and cost of unencrypted data.

Quick Reminders from the Policy:

- Use only approved texting platforms (Hearsay Relate, Ring Central, RedTail Speak, My Rep Chat). However, keep in mind that texts are not encrypted and should never include confidential information.
- When sending encrypted E-mail:

- Use Encrypt or Secure if you are only sending information out (no sensitive reply expected).
- Use Sensitive if you are requesting information back.

Around the Business Block

OBBBA White Paper from Jackson

A few weeks back, we had Chris Bogren on the Connections call going over the OBBBA that was passed back in July. He has officially published his white paper which you can download here -> LINK

This is not intended for client use.

Monthly Updates on Wove

The latest CIRStatements initiatives report for September had been published.

A link to the summary is here -> LINK

In addition to the items outlined in the summary, recent enhancements include:

- Ability to copy and paste within the platform
- Flexibility to drag, drop, and adjust column widths (excluding client name)
- New date range selection options
- Updated search results prioritizing clients before accounts
- Navigation improvements, including the ability to pin or collapse the left-hand menu

The CIRStatements Upgrade to Wove Reporting page on cir2.com provides resources to help you and your clients navigate the new CIRStatements platform, including:

- Platform Improvement Initiatives from BNY Pershing
- Step-by-step login and authentication guides
- Advisor and client user guides

CAAP News – American Funds Tax-Aware Strategy Changes

Cambridge works closely with our partners to keep you informed of changes that have impacted their product offerings.

They have been informed that CAAP® strategist Capital Group is transitioning American Funds Tax-aware investment vehicles from mutual funds to ETFs, with the goal of creating more tax-efficient solutions. The transition is scheduled to go into effect on October 15, 2025.

Financial professionals are advised to review each account carefully, as the transition from mutual funds to ETFs could create tax consequences. Accounts could potentially see a 3% to 6% tax cost, but tax implications can vary account to account. Click here for additional information in the Allocation Bulletin provided by Capital Group.
